- Where submissions may be made in writing by any person;
- The closing date for submissions, and;
- The address where submissions may be made.

Description:

Redonda (16°56'N; 62°21'W) is the uninhabited third island in the state of Antigua and Barbuda. It lies 56km southwest of Antigua, 22 km northwest of Montserrat and 32km southeast of Nevis. Redonda is 1.6 km long, 0.5 km wide and rises to nearly 400m.

The Redonda Ecosystem Reserve will be designated as a Category 4 Habitat and Species Management Area and will comprise a terrestrial and marine area. The terrestrial area will be managed mainly for conservation of the species found thereon through management intervention by permitted groups namely, the Environmental Awareness Group through partnership with the Department of Environment. Strict biosecurity protocols will be applicable for any activities occurring in the Reserve.

The marine area comprises a 500 m zone surrounding the island and will be called the Replenishment Zone. This zone has many purposes and will be utilized primarily for essential scientific research and monitoring activities as well as providing a disturbance (human, boat etc.) free area for protection the marine life found in these waters. This zone will also provide a biosecurity buffer to prevent invasive species reinvasion, protect the sunken cultural heritage found within the zone and protect persons and vessels from the dangerous cliffs and slopes of the island.

Activities permitted in the Redonda Ecosystem Reserve:Terrestrial

- Essential monitoring and biosecurity by permitted individuals
- Essential restoration and management by permitted individuals
- Limited scientific and nature tourism by permitted individuals
- Monitoring of volcanic activity of the Lesser Antilles by permitted individuals
- Commercial filmmaking and photography by permitted individuals upon payment of fee
- Scientific research by permitted individuals
- Non-damaging activities by permitted individuals

Activities prohibited in the Redonda Ecosystem Reserve:Terrestrial

- Construction of boat landing facilities
- Permanent construction or landscape modifications unless deemed necessary by the Department of Environment
- Collection/removal of plant, animal or mineral materials without permission
- Hunting, trapping or killing of plants or animals without permission
- Importation of soil or other organic matter
- Importation of plant or animal material without permission
- Removal of historic and archaeological artefacts
- Disposal of packaging, solid and liquid organic waste

- Disposal of liquid and human waste

Marine (Replenishment Zone)

- Accessing the island of Redonda
- Extractive activities (mining, dredging, all fishing, collecting of resources)
